THE COUNTRY PAPER.
 Amid the... each day
 And... clipping
 Come... Thursday—
 The... age sheet
 That... ham,
 A...
 You... ham
 That... night,
 And—well, my heart grows softer
 And I feel my eyes shine bright;
 Right reverent my touch is.
 It spreads the columns wide,
 The local's what I'm seeking—
 The patented inside.

Oh, here it is: "The County."
 And "Jottings." "Local News"—
 You learn who's traded horses
 And who have rented pews;
 It tells about the schoolhouse
 Where we used to sit and dream,
 A-watching dust specks dancing
 In the sunlight's shifty beam.
 The sturdy names of boyhood
 Come tumbling through our thought
 Of Tom and Brick and Patsey—
 How we loved and how we fought.
 The friends when years grew graver,
 Called now beyond our ken,
 In the type-lines of the paper
 They live and speak again.

Oh, toilers in life's workshops,
 Are not those dream-mists sweet,
 Which memory casts about us
 When past and present meet?
 And so I love that paper
 From the village in the hills
 For the old life that it wakens,
 For the weariness it stills.

Prof. Baldwin's Researches.
 The Mexico Daily Record, of Mexico City, gives the following account of excavations carried on in Mexico by Prof. J. Mark Baldwin, professor of psychology at the Johns Hopkins University:

"The party that the Secretary of Public Instruction appointed to accompany Professor Baldwin, of Baltimore on a trip to the ruins of Mitia and others in that district, were instrumental in reclaiming to the Government an old palace said to have been built by the Aztecs several centuries ago, and which has been occupied by a priest.

"The place is situated near Monte Alban. The priest of the parish many years ago converted it into a church chapel and home.
 "Ezequiel Chavez, subsecretary of instruction, and Leopold Battress, inspector of monuments, Alfonso Pruned and Professor Baldwin were members of the party. Chavez obtained the removal of the priest. However, the Government has consented to build another building, no so pretentious, but more modern for the priest to live in and conduct religious services.

"Professor Baldwin reports himself thoroughly pleased with the result of the trip. He says that the ruins to be found in Mexico are equal to any in the world from an archaeological point of view."

LIGHT BOOZE
 Do You Drink It?

A minister's wife had quite a tussle with coffee, and her experience is interesting. She says:

"During the two years of my training as a nurse, while on night duty, I became addicted to coffee drinking. Between midnight and four in the morning, when the patients were asleep, there was little to do except make the rounds, and it was quite natural that I should want a good, hot cup of coffee about that time. It stimulated me and I could keep awake better.

"After three or four years of coffee drinking I became a nervous wreck, and thought that I simply could not live without my coffee. All this time I was subject to frequent bilious attacks, sometimes so severe as to keep me in bed for several days.

"After being married, Husband begged me to leave off coffee, for he feared that it had already hurt me almost beyond repair, so I resolved to make an effort to release myself from the hurtful habit.

"I began taking Postum and for a few days felt the languid, tired feeling from the lack of the stimulant, but I liked the taste of Postum, and that answered for the breakfast beverage all right.

"Finally I began to feel clearer headed and had steadier nerves. After a year's use of Postum I now feel like a new woman—have not had any bilious attacks since I left off coffee."

Modern Farm Methods
As Applied in the South.

Notes of Interest to Planter, Fruit Grower and Stockman

Credit System Bad.

I have been watching country life in the South for many years and have come to the conclusion that the "advance system" is just as great a mistake on the part of the merchant as it is on the part of the farmer, for the following reasons:
 First, the merchant takes great risks, which, of course, he tries to cover by increased charges. But even though these charges are increased, the staples of life are not such articles as a high percentage of profit will adhere to, and the merchant is practically trading gold for a promise to pay. If the crop fails, he is obliged to carry and carry and carry, and may ultimately, as in thousands of cases, be obliged to take a farm, for which he has no use.

Under a cash system there will be a great reduction in the sales of some staple foods, such as bacon, potatoes, beans, lard, vegetables, canned goods, hay, corn, etc., all articles that carry low profits. The farmer, however, will buy with his surplus more dry goods, clothing, shoes, furniture, etc., for his family, better teams, farm implements, wagons, buggies, etc., on which there is a much greater profit for the merchant than on staple articles of food. The merchant can turn his money in thirty days, instead of a year. Ten per cent. clear profit turned monthly is better than 120 per cent. gain received annually.

Again, there is something about raising cotton, tobacco or any other crop, to pay a debt, that saps the vitality of the farmer and affects the quality of his tillage. It really lowers the grade of farming.
 If the merchants will join with us in urging the farmers to raise all their food supplies and try to produce by better tillage double the crop per acre they now produce, the result as it affects the merchant will be that all business will soon be on a cash basis and the volume will be three or four times as large from the farmers alone. The advent of more money will bring diversified industries among the farmers, and eventually will attract manufacturers to the market towns.

If there are idle farms in the country, instead of calling meetings for the purpose of raising funds to secure immigration, call meetings to encourage the farmers who know the country and are loyal to it, to universally adopt the following plan: First, provide their own food supplies from the farm. Second, double the average product on every acre under cultivation and let each worker on the farm, by the use of better teams and tools, till three times as many acres as at present, not in the one crop but in a variety of diversified and profitable crops. This would cause an immediate demand for more land and would provide the money to pay for it. This makes every man on the farm more than six times the industrial power he now is and gives him a love of the farm. This is better than to leave him in discouragement and secure immigrants to come and buy him out.

It appears to me, therefore, that the farmer will immeasurably gain when he produces what he has hitherto bought in the way of living. He is not compelled to sell his crop immediately upon the harvest. When he does sell he trades for cash. The greater amount of money he has is very helpful to the family, but the stimulus to his self respect is perhaps the most important item to be considered. The merchant will be equally benefited by the greater volume of business and by the quick return of his money.

These points should be urged upon all the people.—S. A. Knapp, Special Agent in Charge Farmers' Co-operative Agent in Charge Farmers' Co-operative.

First Consideration.

Over-enthusiastic supporters of the various movements for the control of the price of cotton too often lose sight of the fact that a product "well bought is half sold."
 On one occasion we heard the leader of a great cotton growers' movement seriously declare that we knew enough about making cotton and that all the South needed now was to get the worth of her great staple product. We should not miss any opportunity to strengthen and improve our marketing, but it is the height of absurdity to neglect the production side. The man who makes his cotton for six cents a pound, no matter how high the selling price, has just four cents a pound greater profit than the man who makes it at a cost of ten cents. Likewise the man who makes a bale to the acre will make a greater profit than the man who makes but half a bale. It is, therefore, nonsense, if not something worse, for any man to claim

NEW SULTAN PLOWS ON HIS "CORONATION DAY."

Mehemed V ended his "coronation day" by ploughing a furrow in the lawn at Dolma Bagtche Palace, symbolically, at least, by holding the plough handles for a fraction of a minute while two horses dragged it a few yards. In carrying out the ancient test, Mehemed V showed himself to be sound of body. It had been a day both of fulfillment of ancient customs and of the breaking of them. Christians, for the first time, were admitted to the small mosque attached to the Ayoub Mosque, and allowed to see the ceremony of girding the sword of Osman upon the Sultan. Among thirty persons present were Buchman Pasha, an American, and Woods Pasha, an Englishman, both of whom are in the Turkish service.

that we know enough about making cotton already, so long as it requires, on an average, two and one-half acres of land to produce a bale of cotton.
 We have much yet to learn about marketing crops, but not more than we still need to learn about producing them. The latter is largely an individual matter, while the former is almost entirely one of co-operation. The one we can do without the assistance of our fellow-producers, while the other is largely beyond our individual influence. The one requiring combined action is, therefore, the more difficult to accomplish; hence, let no one neglect an opportunity to give his aid to any movement which will make for co-operative action in the marketing of the South's greatest heritage. But for immediate, large and profitable results, let us not fail to produce our cotton at the least possible cost by making the highest possible yield per acre.—Progressive Farmer.

Poultry "Musts."
 To get what we should from poultry we must (1) keep more and better poultry; (2) house and care for it better; (3) feed it better, and (4) market the products in better condition.

Pure bred birds are best. (1) because the products when offered for sale are uniform and will bring better prices, (2) because eggs and fowls may be sold at remunerative prices for breeding purposes, and (3) because properly bred and selected birds will produce more eggs or meat with the same feed and care than will those not bred for any specific purpose.
 Dampness and filth are the two great things to be guarded against in Southern poultry houses. Dampness must be avoided at all cost, and the houses must be kept clean—free from filth, bad odors and vermin.
 We must learn to feed our poultry properly, to have a balanced ration and to give them green food and grit. We must also learn to put up our eggs in better shape, and to have uniform lots of birds to offer for sale. The manner in which the Southern poultry and eggs are marketed is largely responsible for the low prices they bring.—Progressive Farmer.

Five in One.
 I find the following arrangement to be the most convenient and useful contrivance of its kind on the farm. Hence I submit it to the benefit of the public.
 I will not give any particular lengths, as that depends on size of wagon and the preference of the farmer.

No. 1 is about 5x6 inch light wood. No. 2 is 2x3 inch. Sink holes in No. 1 about 1 1/2 inch deep by 2x3 for No. 2. This holds No. 1 in place. Now if you want to haul logs simply place two bunks (one at each end of wagon) on No. 1 and you are ready. Then if you want to haul 4-foot wood put in standard No. 3.

Then perhaps you may want to do some transferring on the farm—simply place boards on cross pieces No. 2 (after putting in about five) and you are ready. Next you may want to haul out manure—but in standard to hold sideboards and you are ready. Now you see a rain coming up and you want to change to getting in hay. Then remove standards and bring out the following which you should have hanging at the side of shed in two pins, place on pieces No. 1 and you are ready. No. 4 are cross pieces 2x4 inches to hold boards (No. 5). Put in standards at front and rear end of No. 1, just inside of pieces No. 4, to hold No. 4 and No. 5 at proper place. When through using either of the above, drive in shed, remove standards and hang from No. 5 on pins; have pins on opposite side of shed for pieces No. 1; then you have a every-

Kidney Ailment

I want every person who suffers with any form of kidney ailment, no matter how many remedies they have tried, no matter how many doctors they have consulted, no matter how serious the case, to give Munyon's Kidney Remedy a trial. You will be astonished to see how quickly it relieves all pains in the back, loins and groins caused by the kidneys. You will be surprised to see how quickly it reduces the swelling in the feet and legs, also stiffness under the eyes, after taking a few doses of this remedy. If you are taking a few doses of this remedy, you will be delighted to see the color returning to your cheeks and feel the thrill of vigor and good cheer. If your urine is thick or milky, if it is pale and foamy, if it contains sediments or brickdust, if it is highly colored, or if you have an offensive smell, if you urinate frequently, you should persist in taking this remedy until all symptoms disappear. We believe this remedy has cured more serious kidney ailments than all the kidney medicines that have been compounded. Professor Munyon believes that the terrible death rate from Bright's Disease and Diabetes is unnecessary and will be greatly reduced by this remedy.
 Go at once to your druggist and purchase a bottle of Munyon's Kidney Remedy. If it fails to give satisfaction I will refund your money.—Munyon.
